

ALLIES

Rejected the Offer Made

And Approached Near a Break

SENATE COMMITTEE ON THE AFFAIRS OF THE ARMY.

SAYS NO "BLUFFS" WILL GO.

Bowen's Powers Must be Enlarged in Order to Meet Demands of Preferred Creditors.

Washington, Jan. 30.—There is a pause in the Venezuelan negotiations that approaches perilously near a breach, and the end is not yet in sight. It all grows out of the attitude of the allies in insisting upon preferential treatment for themselves in the settlement of their claims. Mr. Bowen has been informed of the decision of the allies to insist upon adhering to this claim, and he has come to a stand in his work for the moment. Possibly fresh and enlarged powers will be necessary to enable him to meet the demands of the allies.

Two courses are now open to Mr. Bowen, and it probably will be for President Castro to elect which he shall follow. He may, in his response to the other claimant nations than the allies take the opportunity to inform the world that Venezuela yields to overpowering force and that if she cannot meet their claims they must reckon with the allies themselves.

The other course is for him to declare that his mission has failed, that he cannot come to a reasonable understanding with the allies because of their uncompromising attitude, and, therefore, the case must go to The Hague tribunal for adjustment.

The Venezuelan situation, especially the attitude of Germany, was discussed by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and the situation influenced the committee on some matters pertaining to the army appropriation bill, among which was the decision to accept the House provision relating to transports; that they be retained in the service.

The committee also provided for an increase in electricians, skilled gunners, machinists and others who take care of and handle guns in the sea-coast defenses.

Some other additions were made in the bill with a view of improving the service.

The discussion was general and earnest and the conclusion reached as stated by a member of the committee, was that the United States must make it plain that the honor and dignity of the country would be maintained, and that Germany should not be allowed to "bluff" the government by any attitude she might assume.

The following statement was made at the German Embassy by Count Quadri relative to the Panther episode at Fort San Carlos:

"We had thought until now that the Panther was trying to get into Maracaibo Harbor, which it had a perfect right to do to make the blockade more effective and to stop the supposed importation of supplies from across the Colombian border. A report has come showing that the Panther had not the remotest intention of going into the harbor, and could not have done so because she was drawing too much water to cross the bar. Her intention was to get better shelter near the bar when she was fired on by the San Carlos forts."

Venezuela's plight at this moment lies in the fact that she is between two fires. The allies demand preferential treatment, while France and other creditors look to Venezuela for fair treatment, pointing out that to discriminate against their claims when their attitude had been correct and even magnanimous, would not be fair treatment.

The situation is still uncertain, and official representatives are awaiting some information from the developments of the next 48 hours. No final answer has come to Minister Bowen's proposition offering a guarantee, as demanded by the allies, as a preliminary to the raising of the blockade and the relief of the unfortunate situation in which the blockade places the people and government of Venezuela.

The contention of the three allies that they shall be given preferential treatment is the point on which the negotiations now hang fire. Minister Bowen is insistent that the allies shall not have preferential treatment and in all his conferences with the representatives of the European governments here he has made his position very clear. It is known that he had declined to modify his demands in this respect. Pressure along certain influential lines has been brought to bear on the allies to show the justice of Mr. Bowen's contention.

The European governments are taking time to consider fully their reply to Bowen's proposition before making final answer. Minister Bowen continues hopeful of a favorable answer.

AMERICAN BANK Preferred by Venezuelans to the Appointment of a Belgian.

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 30.—Statements in a cable published in Caracas that Belgium thought its Charge will be charged with the administration of the customs houses, which will be turned over as a guaranty for the payment of foreign claims and the collection of the duties, were not welcomed by foreign merchants here or by Venezuelan bankers, importers and high government officials.

I visited several prominent person and to questions all said: "We would prefer an American bank to Belgium, as that is not an individuality. Moreover Belgium has claims against Venezuela, just the same as other nations, and is thus an interested party."

One government official remarked that the selection of Belgium was not bad, but an American bank would be better.

It is added that Belgium has a tainted claim in connection with the Caracas waterworks, in which Crespo and his gang were compromised. For this reason and others an American administrator of customs is preferred.

BOWEN'S REPLY To the Powers' Objection to Equality Plan is Awaited.

London, Jan. 30.—Great Britain, Germany and Italy have sent a joint reply to Minister Bowen refusing to accept the proposal that all the countries having claims against Venezuela should be placed on an equality with the three co-operating Powers.

Venezuela's answer is expected today. If Mr. Bowen can agree to give preference to the claims of Great Britain, Germany and Italy, the blockade is likely to be raised immediately. This is the only outstanding vital point. Should complications arise, such as a protest from some of the other Powers, the negotiations will be indefinitely prolonged.

SHORTAGE

OF MR. BAYER IS NOW PLACED AT $100,000.

Man Who Was in Newark Recently is Now Thought to be in South America.

Circleville, O., Jan. 30.—The examination of the looks of former Secretary G. C. Bayer of the Germania, Circleville and New Citizens' Building and Loan association has been nearly completed, and Payer's aggregate shortage is found to be approximately $100,000, of which amount $50,000 is with the New Citizens', $25,000 with the Germania and $25,000 with the Circleville company. No findings have been received from Bayer since his disappearance, but some of his friends believe he has gone to South America.

Postal Stock Stolen.

Cattlettsburg, Ky., Jan. 30.—The store of J. W. Mahan in North Cattlettsburg was burglarized last night. The safe was blown open with dynamite and a large amount of money secured. The store is a subscription for the sale of stamps, postal cards, etc., and all the postal stock was taken.

WAR

To be Declared by Guatemala.

Steamer Goes Ashore Off Cape May.

BATTLEFIELD MONUMENTS TO BE ERECTED.

LATE DISPATCHES BOILED DOWN

Italy Will Not Take Part in St. Louis Exposition—Services in Memory of Mr. McMullen.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—The steamer Panama has arrived here from Central American ports with reports that Guatemala is going to declare war on Salvador and that troops are being massed in Guatemala City.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—During a dense fog last night the Clyde liner Gulf Stream went ashore ten miles north of Cape May. It is feared that the vessel will be a total loss. She left New York Thursday and has a general cargo aboard.

Columbus, Jan. 30.—The Antietam battlefield commission today awarded the contract for monuments to be placed on the battlefield in memory of Ohio troops which served in that engagement. Seven regimental monuments to cost $1,500 each, one brigade monument $4,500, a monument to William McKinley who served coffee to the wounded soldiers while the battle was raging, to cost $5,000, one battery monument to cost $750. The McKinley monument will be 31 feet high. On the face of the monument will be twin busts reliefs, one showing the martyred president as he appeared when a soldier boy and the other at maturity. There is also a figure of McKinley serving coffee.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Services in memory of James H. McMullen, late senator from Michigan, were held today in the Senate. Senator Burrows of Michigan, delivered an oration. Other Senators eulogized the dead and then the Senate adjourned.

ROBBERS

Dropped Four Thousand, It is Said, but Another Story Calls it Sixty Dollars.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 30.—A secret in connection with the recent wrecking and robbery of the private bank at Somerton, Belmont county, has just leaked out. It will be remembered that the bank, which is a private concern, is a member of the Bankers' Association and is consequently insured against burglars.

This relieved depositors and stockholders, as the thieves got away with an amount of money estimated by the officials at a few hundred more than $6,000. It was also related that the burglars had been sighted and were given a chase by a citizens' posse. The pursuing parties were Pinkerton detectives who were employed by the Bankers' Association, and the story goes, and it is well supported, that during the chase the burglars dropped a roll of money containing more than $4,000, which was returned to the bank and the chase abandoned.

ONLY SIXTY DOLLARS

All in Dimes Recovered, Says This Story—Still Searching.

Barnesville, O., Jan. 30.—Regarding the above dispatch that the Somerton bank burglars had surrendered a large amount of their swag in order to escape being caught, Mr. Ed. Bradford, cashier of the local bank, states that the pursuing party recovered only $60—a sack of dimes amounting to that sum—and that the burglars are now thought to be in hiding in Wheeling, where the detectives are still searching for them, assisted by the officers of Ohio county, West Virginia. A reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the thieves has been offered by the Ohio Bankers' Association and the detectives are working to secure this reward.

EXPLOSION

Caused by Lightning Puts Street Cars and Motors Out of Service at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 30.—An explosion supposed to have been caused by lightning, during a severe electrical storm last night set fire to one of the big transformers of the Niagara Falls Power company and put the plant and its customers out of business. The explosion took place at 11 o'clock p. m., and Buffalo and Niagara were without light and street car service. Users of electric power were obliged to resort to auxillaries, or shut down today. Some of the large manufacturing plants will be idle for a week. Trolley cars are operated with storage batteries.

Child Wife Missing.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 30.—An appeal has been made to the police to locate Hazel, the child wife of Charles E. Groff, of South Scioto street. The young woman is but 10 years old and is called extremely handsome. After being married six weeks she and her husband separated in November. About 10 days ago she mysteriously disappeared.

BRIDE

OF TWO DAYS TAKES POISON IN CHICAGO

Declaring That She Knew She Could Not Make Her Husband, Leon, Happy.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—After two days of married life, in which she repeatedly informed her husband that she knew she could not make him happy, Mrs. Lillian Eliaschow attempted to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid in her room at the Grace Hotel, Jackson boulevard, and Clark street. Her husband found her a few minutes after she had taken the poison and secured medical aid in time to prevent her death.

At the County Hospital, where the young woman occupies her bed, unconscious that her husband is near her, the physicians say it is doubtful whether she will survive the effects of the acid.

Mrs. Eliaschow is 22 years old and her husband, Leon Eliaschow, a prominent business man of Cayuga, Ind., is but two years her senior. According to the police the woman attempted to take carbolic acid three times within two weeks and each time friends learned of her intention in time to thwart her.

Mrs. Eliaschow's maiden name was Lillian Cohen. She formerly lived in Michigan City, Ind. After her engagement to Mr. Eliaschow several weeks ago she came to Chicago and lived with her sister. Since the wedding on Tuesday the couple have occupied apartments at the Grace hotel.

Mrs. Eliaschow is said to have acted queerly from the time of her engagement was announced. The police learned from friends of the young woman that she repeatedly declared that the man she was to marry was "too good for her." She became despondent at times and refused to be cheered even by her nearest friends.

Having business to attend to, Mr. Eliaschow left his wife yesterday about 11 o'clock, saying he would soon return. It was 1 o'clock before he returned to his room. He found the door locked, and when he was unable to get a reply to his knock, grew alarmed. Without waiting to notify the hotel employee, Mr. Eliaschow climbed through the transom. He found his wife lying on the floor and an empty bottle of carbolic acid as near by.

Both Mr. Eliaschow and the bride's sister said the young woman had been despondent at least two months. "She seemed to be possessed of the idea that she could not make me happy," said Mr. Eliaschow. "I tried to make her cheer up and told her she was in error the first time, I just let her be happy," she said. "Why can't you be happy?" she said. "I was always happy when I was a girl."

It is too good to be true, said the sister, that she should have known the girl was so happy. "Try as I would," she said, "I could not make her happy."

TIME

For Ratifying the Treaty

Extended for Two More Months

SENATOR MORGAN OPPOSES THE PANAMA TREATY

IN A LONG ADDRESS TODAY

Unanimous Report on Alaskan Boundary—Mr. Morgan Will Talk Tomorrow Against Panama.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The Senate committee on foreign relations today made an unanimously favorable report on the Alaskan boundary treaty and also agreed to extend the time for ratification of the Cuban reciprocity treaty for two months. No conclusion was reached on the Panama canal treaty.

Senator Morgan made a long speech on it, beginning with the first discovery of the Isthmus. He also presented a large number of amendments, about forty or more, which were not read, but which he proposes to offer and debate at length in his efforts to defeat the treaty. The committee will meet again tomorrow to listen to Mr. Morgan.

BY JURY

The Indiana Coal Dealers Will Have Trial—Unable to Agree With the State Attorney.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—The Indiana coal men, against whom indictments were voted by the special grand jury have been unable to agree with State Attorney Deenen as to a statement of facts which was scheduled for presentation to the court. The operators will now be asked to give bond so that their cases may come up for trial by jury in the usual way. It was expected that an agreement could be arrived at and that the personal indictments would be dismissed. The state, it is said, desired the indicted coal men to admit violation of the Illinois statutes and to reply for their defense upon the unconstitutionality of the laws. The operators declare their transactions came within the scope of the interstate commerce laws and not within the Illinois statutes.

ALL NIGHT

Snyder's Body Hung Upon a Live Wire Against Which He Had Walked. Neck Burned to Bone.

Springfield, O., Jan. 30.—Frank H. Snyder, aged 35 was electrocuted about 7 o'clock by walking unknowingly into a feed wire of the Columbus, London and Springfield Traction Line. His death was instantaneous as the wire was charged with 20,000 volts.

He met his death within sight of his home. He left the house to call on Oscar Price, a neighbor and started to take a short cut by going through what is known as Warden's pasture. He must have been walking almost parallel with the wire, as it struck him on the neck just below the right ear. His weight brought the wire down to within a few inches of the ground, and when found his head was still resting on the live wire and his feet on the ground. The wire had burned into his neck to the bone.

An indicator at the power house registered that the wire was grounded at 7:10 o'clock and the power was shut off. If it had not been his body would have burned to a crisp. Snyder was a machinist and worked at the Bordenport factory.

Twenty-Second Victim.

Phonetic, N. J., Jan. 30.—The twenty-second fatality as a result of the Jersey Central wreck, Tuesday night, was that of a man named M. Clark, of East Newark, N. J., who died at the hospital.

FAMILY

Reared Before a Woman Discovered She Was Not Legally Married. Court Action.

Canton, O., Jan. 30.—Mrs. John Ott, married for 21 years, and the mother of six children, asks to have her marriage contract annulled, upon the ground that when she married her husband he had another wife living. Ott came from Germany, where he and his first wife separated 30 years ago. After they had lived apart for three years they thought they were entitled to get married again without any divorce.

Both married and for 18 years John and his second wife lived together, rearing a family of six children. In 1897, Mary Ott, the second wife, says that she discovered that John's first wife had not been divorced. She immediately separated from John and later applied for alimony. As a defense Ott insisted that his wife knew the condition when they were married. A divorce case was begun, but as there had been no legal marriage there could be no divorce.

David Paul's Death.

David Paul, D. D., ex-president of Muskingum college, and former pastor of New Concord U. P. church, is dead. This announcement will bring sadness to the hearts of many people throughout southeastern Ohio, for he was one of the best known educators and pastors of his day. Dr. Paul was the father-in-law of Dr. William Harper, President of the Chicago University, and was a teacher in the old Preparatory Academy in Granville in 1876-78, and Principal of the Academy in 1878-79, during the time when Dr. Andrews was president of Denison University.

BATHED

In Boiling Water at Asylum and Death Caused, Says Administrator of Willingham.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 30.—Suit was filed yesterday by P. M. Willingham, of Webster county, administrator of James Y. Willingham, against the Western Lunatic Asylum and Dr. W. W. Ray, superintendent, for $25,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained by James Y. Willingham, a patient. The petition alleges that under pretext of bathing Willingham boiling hot water was turned on him and the flesh on his feet and legs cooked. After suffering for days Willingham died. Death, the petition alleges, was due to neglect on the part of servants of the asylum and Superintendent Ray.

THE DEAD

As a Result of the Arizona Wreck May Number Thirty-four—Partial List of Victims.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 30.—The coroner's jury impaneled by Coroner Calver viewed the remains of 11 victims of Wednesday's disaster on the Southern Pacific, near Vales Station. Identification was difficult and the body of what is known as Warden's pasture. He must have been walking almost parallel with the wire, as it struck him on the neck just below the right ear. His weight brought the wire down to within a few inches of the ground, and when found his head was still resting on the live wire and his feet on the ground. Weather Prevails In West

It is Far Below Zero in North Dakota

A BIG DROP IN TEMPERATURE AT CHICAGO.

MANY APPEALS FOR ASSISTANCE

Prompt Aid is Now Being Given as the Mild Weather Permitted Accumulation of Stores.

There was a drop of 32 degrees in temperature in Newark in the 18 hours ending at 7 a. m. Friday. At 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon the mercury registered 60 degrees and at 1 o'clock this morning the thermometer stood at 28 degrees. It promises to be colder tomorrow.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—It was 10 degrees above zero in Chicago at 10 a. m. today, a decline since Thursday of 27 degrees. A further drop is predicted. Chicago, Jan. 30.—One of the severest cold waves of the season prevails today in the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and northern Illinois. Bismark, N. D., records the lowest temperature. The mercury reached 28 degrees below at 7 a. m. As a result of the breaking up of the mild spell the police and charity bureaus of this city are being overwhelmed with appeals for aid. Prompt assistance is being given as great stores of fuel, clothing and food have been accumulated since the last cold wave.

Mr. Long Very Ill.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Former Governor John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy under President McKinley, as well as for some months under President Roosevelt, lies critically ill at St. Margaret's Hospital. Three physicians are at his bedside, his wife and daughter are close at hand and his young son Pierce has been summoned from Hingham.

Governor Long was brought from Hingham nearly three weeks ago with catarrh of the bladder, a trouble of long standing.

At 10:30 a. m. today the physicians issued the following bulletin: "Mr. Long had a fairly good night. His condition shows no change for the worse. He has held his ground."

PRINETTI SLIGHTLY BETTER.

Rome, Jan. 30.—Signor Prinetti the foreign minister who was stricken with an attack of paralysis on Thursday, is slightly better today.

WEALTHIEST

Man in the State, Though Unlettered, Is the New Senator From the State of Washington.

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 30.—The ambitious man who was a daughter of former Senator Meadwith, to see her husband occupy the place that her father once filled with consequence is alone responsible for the election of Levi Ankeny to the United States Senate.

Mr. Ankeny was born in North-Western Missouri in 1844, and came to this portion of the country with his parents in 1850. His life has been devoted to the accumulation of wealth, and the same dogged persistence that has made his millions landed him the office to which he has just been elected. Unlettered, a plain, commonplace man of business, caring nothing for society or the mere pleasure of life, he has risen in the last few years to be the wealthiest man in the State of Washington.

Twenty-five years ago he established the first National Bank in Walla Walla and is now President of six national banks in this state and Washington, besides being largely interested in agricultural and grazing lands in the Northwest. He has never before held a political office.

THE CONGRESSIONAL BRIBERY DISGRACE.

That Congressional bribery story turns out to be a very disgusting mess, involving three sample New York Republicans. The mess began by Congressman Lessler making the charge that he had been offered a bribe to support an appropriation for the Holland submarine boat. Lessler said he had been offered the bribe by a well known Republican politician named Doblin. Then, when Doblin was put on the witness stand before the Congressional Committee, he swore that he was authorized to offer the bribe by ex-Congressman Quigg, one of the leading Republican politicians of New York City. This created a sensation which made a great stir in the inner circles of high up Republicans both at New York and Washington. Mr. Quigg, of course, was compelled to make denial, which he did by testifying before the Congressional Committee that he never authorized Doblin to offer the bribe to Lessler. But as Lessler still maintained that Doblin did make the offer of the bribe, the only way to save Quigg from being smirched was to bring the said Doblin back on the witness stand to retract his former testimony. This was the climax of the disgusting affair. Doblin again went on the witness stand and swore he lied in his former testimony. He seemed to have no hesitancy in proclaiming himself a liar to relieve both Quigg and Lessler of the odium. He admitted in his last testimony that he had offered Lessler the bribe, but took all the disgrace upon himself by stating that he had lied when he previously testified that Quigg had authorized him to offer the bribe.

The disgraceful affair is too much for even such a Republican organ as the New York Tribune. That paper comments on the matter in these plain words:

"Doblin, Quigg and Lessler have all testified about bribery. Doblin says Quigg wanted him to bribe Lessler. Quigg says it's a lie. Lessler says Doblin told him it was true. Clearly somebody is lying, and presumably he has a motive for it. Now Doblin turns around and says he lied. Quigg and Lessler stand pat. Clearly both Quigg and Lessler had ample motive for standing pat. But what motive did Doblin have for proclaiming himself a liar? Did anybody have any interest in airing the man to make that indecent exhibition of himself? If so, who?"

THE STATEHOOD CONTEST.

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)

Various newspapers of Indiana have had unkind things to say about Senator Quay, and, with reason at times, for he has been an unblushing partisan and spoilsman, and has made his state odious for its overthrow of all good government and fair politics. And that fact makes it the more humiliating now that Senator Quay is leading a fight, in which he is morally right, against a senator from Indiana who is morally as wrong as a public representative can be. We say morally wrong because the matter has reached a point where every valuable old map. Panoram of Constantinople in 1559 Discovered in Leyden. Dr. E. Overmann of the University of Munich discovered recently in the University of Leyden, in Holland, a panorama of Constantinople executed in 1559 by a German artist, Melchior Lorichs, under the protection of the imperial ambassador at the court of Sultan Sulaiman the Great, says the Chicago News. The map is remarkable for the clearness of its outlines. It shows the Turkish capital beginning at the Bosphorus end of the Golden Horn.

Colors have been so carefully applied to the pen drawing that the architectural peculiarities of 1559 may easily be compared with those of the present day. The structure and equipment of the vessels in the Bosphorus are distinctly revealed. The panorama is eleven and a half yards long by a half yard wide. The Kaiser has pronounced it the most important artistic and historical discovery of recent times and has given a large sum for a half size reproduction in photographic colors.

moral consideration calls for the admission of all the territories by the Republican party, and where a refusal to admit them is a gross breach of party pledges.

This is no new matter. In 1888 the Republican party put this plank in its national platform:

The Republican party pledges itself to do all in its power to facilitate the admission of the territories of New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho and Arizona to the enjoyment of self-government as states; such of them as are qualified as soon as possible, and the others as soon as they become so.

Idaho and Wyoming were admitted in 1890, and in 1892 the Republican party went to the people with this pledge in its platform:

We favor the admission of the remaining territories at the earliest practical date, having due regard to the interests of the people of the territories and of the United States.

No action was had on the matter of statehood for the territories in the next four years, and in 1896 the Republican party repeated its pledge to the people in the same words that had been used in the platform of 1892. Again four years passed by without any action, and in 1900 the Republican party, in its national platform, made the following explicit and unequivocal pledge:

We favor home rule for, and the early admission to statehood of the territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma.

If there is any such thing as binding the Republican party by platform pledges surely this is enough to do it, and we cannot see how any Republican—especially any Republican who has publicly supported these platforms before the people—can have the face to take a stand against admission of these territories now. No more open and base betrayal of party promises has ever been known in American history.

STAMFORD'S CAT HOAX.

Only Candy Mice to Be Devoured at Mouse Baiting Contest.

Stamford, Conn., makes its bow to the army of press agents the country over and points to the famous "mouse killing field trials," as a standard for their emulation, says the Philadelphia Press.

That is all the episode amounts to—a press agent plot, pure, but not simple, in which an imaginative young man, aided and abetted by a group of clever women, hoaxed the country for a week, caused endless perturbation to societies and individuals, even started the wheels of justice revolving and incidentally obtained column upon column of advertising for the poultry and cat show which recently opened at Stamford.

The only cat ever designed to appear at the field trial, it is now known, is an automatic affair bought at a toy store. The only mice are of chocolate, manufactured by a New York confectioner.

That the scheme was successful was evidenced from the outset. Less than a day later John P. Haines of New York, president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, wrote Mrs. Homer Cummings a letter, and newspapers, both local and at a distance, began to attack the proposed trial editorially. The Connecticut society immediately held a meeting and appointed committees to see that the law was not violated. Ministers from the pulpit denounced it as an outrage. The Rev. Dr. Loss Love, head of the Connecticut Humane society, announced that he would leave no stone unturned to prevent the sanguinary carnival. Mayor Leeds took up the cudgels and declared he would see that it was stopped. The W. C. T. U. interfered, of course.

Fuel was added to the flames daily by Frank Abbott, secretary of the poultry show. He announced the other day that he had been promised 2,000 mice for the contest. He spoke truthfully. They were ordered of the confectioner that day.

TRIBUTE TO THE DOG

Effect of Senator Vest's Versatility and Eloquence Upon a Missouri Jury.

One of the most eloquent tributes ever paid to the dog was delivered by Senator Vest, of Missouri, some years ago. He was attending court in a country town, and while waiting for the trial of a case in which he was interested he was urged by the attorneys in a dog case to help them. He was paid a fee of $25 by the plaintiff. Voluminous evidence was introduced to show that the defendant had shot the dog in malice, while other evidence went to show that the dog had attacked the defendant. Vest took part in the trial and was not disposed to speak. The attorneys, however, urged him to make a speech, else their client would not think he had earned his fee. Being thus urged he arose, scanned the face of each jurymen for a moment and said:

"Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog."

The jury filed out but soon entered with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500. He had sued for $200. It is even said that some of the jurors wanted to hang the defendant—Nashville American.

"A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drifts fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will lick the hand that has no food to offer, he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground no matter if all other friends pursue their way there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

Then Vest sat down. He had spoken in a low voice, without gesture. He made no reference to the evidence of the merits of the case. When he finished judge and jury were wiping their eyes.

The jury filed out but soon entered with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500. He had sued for $200. It is even said that some of the jurors wanted to hang the defendant—Nashville American.

LITTLE TOUCHES.

They Are the Making of a Smart Gown.

It is the little touches in the evening gowns which make them so perfect. Like a black satin bow tied flat in the back of the waist with a paste buckle and a beautiful vest coming from beneath a bolero of lace formed of narrow rows of velvet radiating to a point in the center. All these several velvets are apparently drawn from beneath the bolero into a bow of ends and loops at the top of the décolletage. Many of the sleeves open on the outside of the arm down to the elbow, where they end in ruffles.

Veiling plays its part, and a good part, too, in the evening fashions. It falls so softly and forms such a good background for silver decoration.

A gown recently arrived from Paris in a deep tone of blue velvet sparkles with paillettes that shine like a star in the heavens. It is neither very full nor has it the appearance of being much trimmed. A perfect figure molded in it could hardly be shown to greater advantage.

The smart dress here shown is of old rose silk veiling over silk of the same shade. JUDIC CHOLLET.

PERISHABLE GOWNS.

Beautiful Designs and Trimmings of Gold Lace.

Velour mouseline is one of the most beautiful fabrics of the year, and chiffon peking, with its satin stripe, which can be had in almost any color, is a feature of fashion we do well to remember.

A wonderful dress recently designed for a French house was in sky blue mirror velvet with a diaphanous front and back trimmed with a series of chevrons, which appear also on the bodice and short sleeves.

An empire evening gown demands a perfect carriage and the art of wearing one's clothes. Indeed in nine cases out of ten it is a failure. A recent example to the contrary, however, was of pale blue crepe de chine made with an empiement on the hips calculated to show off a good figure at its best, and down the front there was a broad band of lace beautifully embroidered in cheville and gold and caught up here and there with tiny tassels. This treatment was repeated at the hem over cloth of gold.

You can feel the good effects of Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in a short time.

Its purifying, enriching, nourishing influence soon becomes apparent in better appetite; better sleep; better ambition; better hopes and better health. For general debility and weak, impoverished conditions, which are all the more emphasized by winter's winds, Hagee's Cordial is a favorite with thousands of physicians.

They find it palatable and agreeable to the weakest stomach or most sensitive taste. No grease—no fishy flavor—no nausea—so common in other cod liver oils, nothing but the good that does good in Hagee's.

MINERS TO HELP.

Mitchell Urges Them to Get Out as Much Coal as Possible.

John Mitchell calls upon every miner in the anthracite coalfields to work now as he never worked before in order to alleviate the misery of the thousands crying for fuel.

President Mitchell prepared a letter, signed also by District Presidents Nichols, Duffy and Fahy, officially conveying to all local unions a statement of the conditions existing and asking them to do all in their power to aid the sufferers.

This letter reads: "To the Officers and Members of Local Unions of the U. M. W. of A. in the Anthracite Region:

"You are no doubt aware that a serious coal famine exists in all the eastern and seaboard cities, due to the shortage of the anthracite coal supply. The situation has reached an acute stage and has resulted in great suffering and hardship to the poor of the cities, whose earnings are insufficient to enable them to pay the excessive prices now being charged for fuel, and it is subjecting the general public to great inconvenience.

"To relieve the situation and alleviate as far as possible the suffering now being endured is the duty of every one connected with the production of coal. With this end in view we are prompted to address this communication to all members of our union and request that they co-operate with the management of the mines in an effort to increase the production of coal. The gravity of the situation, is such as to require that every mine worker shall exert himself and use every means at his command to this end.

"Upon reading this communication in the columns of the daily papers local unions should hold meetings and devise means whereby the daily output of the mines may be increased. These efforts should be continued until the weather moderates and the great necessity for fuel shall have passed."

A Little Surprise.

A London dispatch says that George M. Barnes, secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and one of the British labor commissioners who recently visited the United States with Mr. Imposely, has made public some of his impressions, which rather surprise those who have had experience on both sides of the Atlantic. Mr. Barnes says of the labor conditions of the two countries that, so far as wages are concerned, England lags considerably, but that in every other respect the comparison is in her favor.

"The most noticeable drawbacks in America," he said, "are the congested character of the workshops, the disregard for the comfort of the workers and the bad sanitation. I am persuaded that on the whole the workmanship of the American mechanic is inferior to that of his British cousin. This, however, is not so observable in the engineering industry as in others.

"With regard to working hours, as a rule they are longer than in England, especially in the engineering trade, but, as I have indicated, the wages are higher.

"With regard to the social conditions of the American workman, I think they are considerably less pleasant than those prevailing in this country."

Child Labor in New York.

A remarkable revelation of child labor in this city is about to be made which many who have studied the matter declare will show that more child labor exists in New York than in all the states of the south combined. It will be a revelation of children put to work under the legal age through the widespread perjury of parents; of children growing up illiterate under the shadow of New York's great public schools; of children stunted in mind and body by hard work and long hours in their growing years and of a whole host of "outlaw" children protected by no law whatever.

The facts on which this revelation is based have been gathered in the last six months by the child labor committee of New York. Last May the settlement workers of the city organized for taking concerted action on the child labor question. A child labor committee was appointed, with Robert Hunter, head of the University Settlement, as chairman. This committee has since become an independent body backed by about 100 of the strongest philanthropists and reformers in New York. —New York Tribune.

CHESSE BY WIRELESS.

Game Played on the High Seas Won by an American Team.

For the first time since the advent of wireless telegraphy rival chess teams on two rival steamships have managed to play a game to a finish, says the New York Herald. This contest was between a team chosen from the saloon passengers of the American liner Philadelphia and one from among the voyagers of the Cunarder Lucania. The result was told when the vessels reached New York the other day and told with great glee by the Philadelphians, whose side had won. There was a bit of international pride in the victory, too, for the team of the American liner were all Americans, while that of the Cunarder were all Britishers.

The Philadelphia was well off the banks when she got in touch by wireless with the Cunarder. That was Friday noon, Jan. 16. After an exchange of positions, which showed the Philadelphia to be about forty miles in the lead of her English rival, the Philadelphia signalled a challenge to play a match game of chess. "Accept," replied the Lucania. "Will play immediately after lunch." The teams were selected, that of the Philadelphia consisting of F. C. Caldwell of Chicago, W. B. Whelan of Philadelphia and W. Weiss of New York. The Lucania marshalled six chess experts to her defense. These were E. Marshall Fox and E. Horace Mundy, both of London; F. W. Young, R. W. Milbank and William Evans of Liverpool, and Captain L. R. Campbell. The champions assembled in the smoking rooms, and quartermasters were detailed to carry messages to and from the operator's station. The Philadelphia took the white and made the first move. The game lasted about three hours. The players on the Philadelphia thought their opponents cultivated too soon the virtue of resignation, as it did not seem to them that the Lucania team's case was hopeless when they gave up the game.

FLOWERS OUT OF SEASON.

New Process Makes Those Which Bloom in Spring Blossom in Fall.

The London Times publishes an account from a correspondent of the "cristization" of plants, a new process whereby plants naturally flowering in the spring are made to produce blossoms during the previous autumn.

The process is simple. The plants are stored in a small galvanized tank. Then ether is poured into a small cup fixed to the top of the tank, whence, after the tank has been securely fastened, the ether is allowed to evaporate for a period of forty-eight hours. During this time the plants shed their leaves and may be described as being in a state of intoxication.

After this period the plants are exposed to the air for another period of forty-eight hours. This in turn is followed by a second period of cristization, after which the plants are removed to an ordinary forcing house and within two or three weeks begin to flower freely.

They Are Winners.

Jackson, Miss., had a brief street car strike recently. The trouble lasted only half an hour, but the temp of the system was complete while it lasted, and it is the second time that the employees have been victorious with the company. The strikers objected to the action of the superintendent in discharging two motormen.

STORIES OF DE BLOWITZ.

Famous Correspondent's Great Bet and His Dependence on a Valet.

M. de Blowitz, the famous correspondent of the London Times in Paris, gave me a lecture of about an hour's duration on all manner of political topics, says a correspondent of London Life. His intellect, like others of his race, is sharp and his method of explication is laid out enough. I may mention two of M. de Blowitz's journalistic feats which stamped him as the correspondent par excellence of his age. At the time of the ever memorable Berlin congress M. de Blowitz applied to the German chancellor for an early copy of the treaty, which was to be signed on a certain Saturday morning; but, although the request was made through the medium of two ambassadors, Bismarck refused to entertain it. To the intense surprise of the other correspondents, M. de Blowitz in a "huff" announced his intention of leaving Berlin forthwith, and he did so, but with the treaty in his pocket! That precious document never left M. de Blowitz's letter case until Brussels was reached, and there it was put on the wire and published by the Times in a second edition on the Saturday at the very moment that the plenipotentiaries in Berlin were signing it! Needless to say that no other paper had it until the following Monday or to describe the waiting and gnashing of teeth in Berlin and Cologne and the other great newspaper centers of Germany. The second great feat of M. de Blowitz was that of interviewing the sultan. Such a thing had never been previously dreamed of, and, as M. de Blowitz rightly said, no one will ever do it again.

An anecdote is related of De Blowitz which illustrates how very complacent he was, even several years ago, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. When the miracles of Lourdes were attracting worldwide attention, the shrine was visited by many Roman Catholic pilgrims from England, including several members of the ducal family of the Howards, whose head is the present Duke of Norfolk. This was "copy" for the Times man, and he expressed a desire to accompany the pilgrims to Lourdes. Although a born Jew, De Blowitz was a fervent and devout Roman Catholic. Moreover, he was a man who liked his comfort.

When he applied to the Englishmen for permission to go with them on their devotions, they consented, but with the provision that he must not be accompanied by his valet—a matter which the pious Anglo-Saxons deemed out of keeping with the humility of their religious enterprise. The great man demurred. "How can I go without my man?" he asked. "Do you not know that I have not for years been competent to put on my own boots?" But the pilgrims were not to be rebuffed by such pleading. "Pilgrims," they replied, "do not wear boots." They go on their way with bare feet." And ostentatious as the great man was in the practice and precept of his adopted faith his lack of Paulian courage was shown by his staying at home in his luxurious quarters.

RURAL ROUTE CHRISTENER.

Novel Application For Position on the Postal Delivery Service.

A San Francisco woman has written to Senator Beveridge applying for a position as "rural" christener," says the New York Post's Washington correspondent. At present no such position exists, but Miss R. C. Miller, the applicant, believes that one should be created. She has noted with sorrow that the new rural free delivery routes are designated by numbers, such as Marion County Rural Route East 1 or West 1 or East 2, and so on. Now, at a reasonable salary, she would undertake to fit appropriate names to these new routes, such as Maple Dell, Silver Leaf, Primrose Valley, Daisy Dingle, Hyacinth Hollow, Lilac Lane and others that might occur to one of her poetic temperament.

When Miss Miller's suggestion was forwarded to Superintendent Machen of the rural free delivery service, he replied that there had evidently been a mistake and that "rural route inspector" was probably the position desired, and in this office no vacancies existed at present.

Rare Fox in Captivity.

Joe Seymour, a farmer living north of Saxon, Wis., has a silver gray fox in captivity for which he has refused $125 from farmers, says the New York Herald. The animal is a rare beauty. He was caught in a trap, but was not injured in the least. Black and silver foxes have been seen of late through that region.

TOMORROW

Good Male Quartet and a First Class Reader Will Furnish the Y. M. C. A. Program.

A good male quartet with the assistance of a good reader can give a delightful evening's entertainment. And such the Columbians and Miss Blanche Ellis Beach, who furnish the program for this week's "Popular Saturday Night" are said to be. Their repertoire consists of some of the best selections used by male quartets. The program is interspersed with imitation Zoho Band, and humorous and patriotic selections.

Reserved seats at the popular price, 10 cents, are now being sold at the Y. M. C. A. It is hoped that every seat will again be taken by tomorrow night.

FORRY LOTS

Many Purchasers are Paying Cash in Full and Receiving Five Per Cent Reduction.

Many of the Forry lot subscribers have taken advantage of the 5 per cent discount allowed by paying for their lots in full. As tomorrow will be the last day on which the 5 per cent discount will be allowed attention is again called to the matter. By terms of the contract between the lot buyers and the trustee, the first payment on the lots is due tomorrow and if desired the purchaser may pay for the entire lot at this time and receive a five per cent reduction.

Trustee S. F. Van Voorhis will be at the Licking County bank during banking hours tomorrow and also tomorrow night to receive payments.

Field of Sport.

Ohio Valley Baseball League. Portsmouth, O., Jan. 30—A new baseball league, which will be known as the Ohio Valley association, was formed Thursday. The league will comprise Parkersburg, W. Va.; Huntington, W. Va.; Maysville, Ky.; Gallipolis, O.; Ashland, Ky.; Wellston, O.; Chillicothe, O.; Portsmouth, O.; Sidney, O.; Charleston, W. Va.; Clarksville, O.; and Sistersville, W. Va.

O. J. Burdette of Charleston, W. Va. was made temporary chairman. Officers will be elected and by-laws adopted at a meeting to be held at Ashland, Ky., February 12. Three games will be played a week and Sunday ball will be played in most cities. William Fox of Charleston, W. Va., will be made president. The salary will be $100 a month.

There is no reason why a league should not be organized in Central Ohio, whose circuit should take in Newark. It is feasible and could be made profitable. Baseball would pay in Newark, and should the right men take hold of the proposition there would be some good baseball here next season.

The street railway company should take the initiative in the matter, if no one else does, as its interests would be conserved by such a step.

Jeffries Will Fight Corbett.

Denver, Jan. 30—Thursday morning the report came from the east that Corbett would give any man $2500 who would bring a set of articles signed by Jeffries to him. A sporting editor here immediately wired to the champion, whose reply was prompt and to the point. The two telegrams speak for themselves:

"Denver, Colo., Jan. 29. "To James J. Jeffries, Champion of the World, St. Joseph, Mo.:

"Corbett has issued a statement that he will give $2500 to any man who can bring him a set of articles signed by you to fight him. Will you sign the same for me? Of course you being champion, can name the conditions. Let's call his bluff. (Signed.) "OTTO FLOTO."

"St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 29. "To Otto Floto:

"If Corbett will deposit $2500 in a bank subject to your order I will sign articles to fight him to a finish for $10,000 a side at Carson City. And show the public that he will quit like a cur the first good punch I hit him. Keep me advised. "JAMES J. JEFFRIES. "Champion of the World."

Kelley Bests Shreck.

West End Club, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 30—Hugo Kelley of Chicago was given the decision over Mike Shreck of Cincinnati Thursday night after fifteen rounds of fast and furious fighting. Both men were bulls as to the amount of punishment they withstood, though Shreck stood the brunt of it from the sixth to the thirteenth round.

In the first round the men were at it hammer and tongs and from appearances the bout looked as if it would not go over five rounds.

From the sixth round to the close of the thirteenth Kelley inflicted a great amount of punishment on Shreck and it looked as if he would go out, especially in the ninth, when Shreck went to his corner staggering.

In the fourteenth round Shreck more than held his own and got in the one damaging blow to Kelley, splitting his left eye.

The fifteenth was the banner, both men standing up pummeling away at each other and as the close both men were very weak from the fast work.

FRANK D. HALL, DRUGGIST—THE HOME OF VINOL.

HARLAN ON TOBACCO.

Associate Justice's Advice as to the Use of the Weed and Liquors.

Associate Justice John M. Harlan, whose completion of a quarter century of service in the supreme court was recently celebrated by a notable banquet in Washington, has for many years been the teacher of a Sunday school class at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, says the New York Post's correspondent. In this capacity it fell to him not so very long ago to conduct the temperance lesson scheduled in the international series. With customary frankness, Mr. Harlan opened his talk by saying that he was really embarrassed by the subject set for the day's study and added that he felt himself to be not the kind of a person to give young men the best instruction in matters of this kind.

He first addressed himself to tobacco, saying that he supposed he must have been using the article when he was ten years old, and perhaps earlier. "This is what stunted my growth," he remarked in a spirit of pleasant irony, appreciated by those who beheld his strikingly large proportions. He went on to say that it was a decidedly mean thing to attribute one's bad habits to the practices or teachings of the community from which one came instead of bearing the responsibility squarely.

But, if the truth be told, there was little reason why the Kentucky boy of a half century ago should not use tobacco; all the men did and some of the women. The teachers in the schools did not discourage tobacco, as the justice remembers, and he was not sure but that they positively encouraged its use.

When his own sons were growing up, he decided to break off the tobacco habit and for a time was successful, but the attempted change in practices of so long standing made him very nervous and led finally to his abandoning his reform plan. His boys seemed to decide not to use tobacco independent of parental example, but guided perhaps by parental precept, and so as a father he accomplished what he really had in view.

In the use of alcoholics Justice Harlan commended "temperance" in distinction from total abstinence. For those persons who find drink a source of weakness or danger he would urge total abstinence, but held that this was a matter for which each should be his own judge. He quoted a number of passages from the Bible in commendation of the use of spirits in various occasions of life and expressed the opinion that the philosophic basis for these maxims still remained sound.

NEW BLOOD POISON CURE.

Washington Doctor Finds Serum Which He Claims Kills the Germ.

Following quickly on Dr. Charles A. Barrows' cure of a case of blood poisoning comes the news of the discovery of a serum by Dr. Charles S. White of Washington which, he says, is almost a sure cure, especially in conjunction with Dr. Barrows' discovery of formation. Blood poisoning is caused by bacilli named streptococci, from the Greek, because under the microscope the bacilli look like a chain linked together.

Dr. White has cured a woman of the disease, says the New York Evening Journal. He says she was sinking fast when he was called. Her pulse was 120 and her temperature 104. Her blood showed the presence of countless swarms of antistreptococci to be given—once at 4 p. m., the second at 10 p. m., and the third at 7 a. m. next morning. It was not necessary to give the third dose. At the time it was due the patient "was enjoying her first refreshing sleep for several days. Next day her pulse was 84 to the minute, temperature 100.6 degrees. Next day pulse 80, temperature 98.8 degrees, and subsequently her temperature never exceeded 98." In a month she was well.

THE TRUE VAMPIRE.

An Experience With the Blood Sucking Animal in India.

Chancing one evening to observe a rather large bat enter an outhouse from which there was no other egress than by the doorway, I was fortunate in being able to procure a light and thus to proceed to the capture of the animal. Upon finding itself pursued it took three or four turns around the apartment, when down dropped what at the moment I supposed to be its young and which I deposited in my handkerchief. After a somewhat tedious chase I then secured the object of my pursuit, which proved to be a fine female megaderma. I then looked to the other bat which I had picked up and to my considerable surprise found it to be a small kind of pipistrelle, which is exceedingly abundant throughout India.

The individual now referred to was feeble from loss of blood, which it was evident the megaderma had been sucking from a large and still bleeding wound under and behind the ear, and the very obviously suctorial form of the mouth of the megaderma was itself sufficient to hint the strong probability of such being the case. During the very short time that elapsed before I entered the outhouse it did not appear that the depredator had once alighted, and I am satisfied that it sucked the vital fluid from its victim, as it flew, having probably seized it on the wing, and that it was seeking a quiet nook where it might devour the body at leisure.

I kept both animals separate till next morning, when, procuring a convenient cage, I first put in the megaderma, and after observing it for some time I placed the pipistrelle with it. No sooner was the latter perceived than the other fastened upon it with the ferocity of a tiger, again seizing it behind the ear, and made several efforts to fly off with it; but, finding it must needs stay within the precincts of the cage, it soon lunged by the hind legs to one side of its prison and after sucking its victim till no more blood was left commenced devouring it and soon left nothing but the head and some portions of the limbs.—"Beast and Man in India."

POULTRY POINTERS.

Everything in the poultry house should be dry. Ducks will not thrive on sloppy food nor on cornmeal alone.

Boiled potatoes, turnips and other vegetables may be fed to ducks to advantage.

A good food for fattening fowls can be made by mixing cornmeal with mashed potatoes and milk.

In dry picking poultry the picking must be done while the fowl is warm—as soon as possible after the fowl is killed.

The nests should never be fastened to the poultry house in such a way that they cannot be readily removed and cleaned.

Fowls are very fond of raw vegetables. Beets, carrots, turnips and especially cabbage may be fed to advantage. The best plan is to chop them fine.

A dressed fowl may be made to look plump by dipping it for ten seconds in water that is nearly boiling hot and then holding it until chilled in cold water.

The Dog.

Man is the best friend of the dog. Horses come next, but between the dog and all other farm animals, from the house cat to the cow and the beef steer, there seems to be a natural enmity. Dogs, however, are fond of sheep and goats, but as diet, not as living friends. Cows and sheep and goats should be kept as free from association with dogs as is possible, with the exception of the trained shepherd dog. A dog walking through a cowpen will often cause a decrease in milk flow that amounts to more than the cash value of the dog. Many dogs are worth considerably less than nothing.

ANOTHER SURVEY OF NEWARK-ZANESVILLE ROAD.

Latest Gossip Concerning Mr. Appleyard, Who is Called the "Man of Mystery."

Zanesville, O., Jan. 30—This morning's Times-Recorder says: "Appleyard stories are always apropos.—In fact the Ohio print appearing without an Appleyard story is next to a freak nowadays."

The latest gossip of this man of mystery comes from Nashport and relates to the recent invasion of those precincts by a party of Appleyard engineers and right of way men.

To the casual observer it at first seemed as though their presence in that town was simply a "bluff" since they are known to have encountered some little opposition in securing rights along the Timber run survey from Mt. Sterling to the city limits. Now a new significance appears, and there is a possibility that the Timber run survey is to be abandoned on account of the hilly topography and a new line run by way of the new survey which will follow the level country from Newark via Nashport to Zanesville, following the old Ohio canal tow path from Newark to Black Hand, at which point the worst grade will be encountered; thence between Irville and Nashport to Shannon, and by way of the Muskingum township house, east of Fuller Van Voorhis' to town. This will in part follow the old Zanesville, Mt. Vernon & Marion survey.

This change may be made in the interests of the heavy coal traffic with the new "criss-cross" the state system contemplates, and will materially aid in carrying the coal from the dark hills of Guernsey, Noble and Monroe to the markets of the state.

Along these lines it may be added that there is a possibility of the B. Z. & C. narrow gauge road being continued as a steam road for freight purposes only, and that the overhead trolley will suffice for passenger traffic alone. In hauling tonnage electricity has not been demonstrated as the peer of steam; heavy trains can not be moved at near so low a figure, and one motor car can haul comparatively few cars. Therefore, it is forecasted by men who concentrate their minds on such subjects, that the steam outfit will be maintained on the Zanesville & Western even after the introduction of electricity.

A COPY OF THE KORAN.

How a Foreigner Must Go About
Purchasing It in Stambul.

In Stambul there are several bookstores the proprietors of which are either Persians, Arabians, Abyssinians or Turks. Not in the frequented streets are these stores, but in dark and narrow alleys. The books in them comprise various editions of the Koran, translated into all the languages of the Orient; theological and historical treatises on the Koran in the Turkish, Persian and Arabic tongues, annals which clearly prove that all the sultans of the Ottoman dynasty were prodigies of genius and sanctity; marvelous fairy tales and stories of adventure, which are more or less fantastic and the sole object of which is to prove that no one should be considered honest, intelligent or happy unless he is a Turkish Muslim, unless he venerates the sultan, unless he lives in Stambul all his life without ever quitting it even for a day and unless he regards as utterly fabulous all that he hears about Europe.

A Mussulman is forbidden to sell a copy of the Koran, and therefore a foreigner who desires to purchase the sacred book must proceed as follows: Go into the bookstore, having on your face as pious an expression as possible, and say to the proprietor:

"I shall consider myself eternally indebted to you if you will present me with a copy of the Koran."

"As I am a devout believer," the proprietor will answer, "I think it my duty to assist any unbeliever who desires to instruct himself in our law. Moreover, you seem to be a serious man, and I am convinced that it is not vain curiosity which prompts you to obtain a copy of the Koran, but a sincere desire to study our religion. Therefore I am willing to make you a present of this copy, though I value it highly, for I paid a good price for it."

You will then put the book in your pocket, and a minute or two later the proprietor will say, "I shall consider myself eternally your debtor if you will make me a present of —," naming a certain sum. If you think the price too high, you may bargain with him, but you must take care not to make the slightest allusion to the copy of the Koran in your pocket, for in disposing of it the proprietor has clearly broken the law, and it would not be good policy for you to remind him of that fact.

"VAMPIRE" SECRET OUT.

Burne-Jones Says That Mrs. Patrick Campbell Wasn't the Model.

The secret of "The Vampire," the ghastly picture of Sir Philip Burne-Jones immortalized by Rudyard Kipling in his "Rags and a Bone and a Hank of Hair" poem, has been revealed by the artist, says a Chicago special to the New York Times.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress, did not pose as the model for the creature who is taking the life blood from the lover. The model was a woman of Brussels, who was paid for posing.

"I want to lay the ghost of that story forever," said the painter as he nervously paced the corridors of the art institute.

"The story never originated with me, and I do not know even how it did originate. I should like to stop it forever. The fact is the picture was started by me while I was in Brussels. I made the study of the figure of the girl from a Brussels model. I hired her at so much a day, and as it turns out, I made a lucky choice."

THE RAILWAYS

Duties of B. & O. Flagmen.
The B. & O. has issued a general order directing attention to a part of flagmen's duties, and on which there should be no misunderstanding: "In case of helping engines overtaking a train that is provided with a flagman, the flagman of the train overtaken will protect helping engines as though they were a part of the train." Apparently, when the latter are provided with flagmen and circumstances of the kind indicated arise, there has been some slight contention concerning who should do the flagging. The general order just issued makes the point clear and there need be no misunderstanding.

Pennsylvania Pension Report.
The annual report of the pension department of the Pennsylvania railroad system has just been issued, and shows that in 1902 (the third year of its existence) $328,403 was paid to retired employees in the form of pensions. The amount paid in the previous year was $292,290, and in 1900, $244,019, making a grand total of $864,713 disbursed in pension allowances in three years. All of this pension money is furnished by the company.

FAINTED
When the Body of a Popular Classmate Was Presented to the Students for Dissection.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Prof. Halbert L. Steensland of the Syracuse University Medical college, has aroused a storm of indignation among the students by showing at a clinic the internal organs of Walter L. Wallace, one of the students who recently died, and upon whose body he performed an autopsy.

Prof. Steensland is a lecturer on pathology, and desired to show the effect of bacteria in the blood in Wallace, who died from internal hemorrhages, resulting from malignant scarlet fever.

When the students realized that they were viewing a demonstration provided from the remains of one of the most popular of their number there was quite a sensation. One of the women students and one of the young men, who was a chum of Wallace, fainted, and had to be carried from the room. The students are talking of making a protest against the action of the professor. Wallace lived in Geneseo. He left a widow and child.

THE COURTS.

GUARD SUIT AGAINST B. & O. IS FINISHED.

Newark Iron and Steel Company's Receivership—Mitchell & Sons vs. City of Newark.

In Common Pleas Court the case of Jerome M. Guard vs. the B. & O. railroad company was tried to the Court Friday. The plaintiff sued for $14.70 for compensation for services rendered as fireman in March, 1901. The defendant railroad company claimed that they had sent to their agent a check for services of plaintiff, payable to his order; that the check was delivered to plaintiff, or to some one authorized by him to receive it, and endorsed by plaintiff; if not by him personally, by some one authorized by him. That the check was presented to the bank and paid. The company claimed that the amount was received by the plaintiff from the defendant. To his answer the plaintiff filed a general denial. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff for $14.70 and interest. Howard, Swartz, Kibler & Kibler.

In the case of Samuel Morris vs. The Newark Iron and Steel Company, William E. Miller was appointed receiver of the property and assets of defendant, giving bond in the sum of $50,000, and qualified as such receiver. An application was filed by the receiver asking to borrow $6,000, and issue receiver's certificates to secure the same to pay for material necessary to proceed to finish the unfinished contracts of defendant. The Court granted the application. It will be necessary to purchase certain quantities of steel, pig iron, coal, lumber, scrap iron, manganese, silicon and aluminum. Receiver states that this together with the pay roll for two weeks ending on February 7 will amount to about $6000.

The following appraisers were appointed: Edward Thomas, W. G. Taafel, and E. L. Wright. J. M. Swartz, J. D. Jones

Thomas M. Jones vs. Barclay I. Jones et al; leave given to file amended petition now on file Flory & Flory; Hunter, Kibler & Kibler.

Louisa E. Munch vs. John P. Camp. A suit upon a promissory note and an account; verdict for plaintiff for $423.29. Norpell, Kibler & Kibler; Smythe & Smythe.

In the case of Ohio ex rel. John Tucker et al vs. City of Newark, special Master Commissioner, D. M. Keller has filed a report with the Court. The action was brought a number of years ago, decided against the city, and then referred to Mr. Keller as master commissioner to determine the damages which relators sustained by reason of the failure of the city to award relators certain paving contracts in the year 1890 upon their bids for the improvement of Church, North Third and West Main streets, according to specifications. The master finds the measure of damages to be the profits which relators would have made on the contracts if they had performed the work under their bids.

Relators claimed damages in the sum of $12,000; the question as to the amount of damages sustained was tried before Master Commissioner Keller, who awarded a judgment for $5008.49. Hunter, J. D. Jones; Solicitor Smythe appeared for the city in the proceedings before the Master.

The case of M. V. Mitchell & Sons vs. City of Newark, is on trial to the Court and jury today. Randolph; Smythe.

The plaintiffs bring suit for the price of a monument sold by them to Henryetta C. Zeublin. Plaintiff says that the city has the title to and the possession of Cedar Hill cemetery, which is in charge of a board of trustees elected by the electors of the city; that the trustees employed a superintendent; that the trustees have provided by by-laws that no person shall place a monument in the cemetery in position except its superintendent, or those authorized by him. That this by-law was ratified by the City Council; that defendant agreed to recover the monument at the freight depot in this city and convey it to the cemetery and place at the Zenblin grave for $2.00, which was paid; that defendant, through its agents, carelessly and negligently handled it, and it was broken and injured. Plaintiff asks for $24.00 damages.

In the case of Thomas Spivey vs. C. L. Smith et al, an action to recover for rent, damages to trees, &c., the jury this afternoon returned a verdict for plaintiff for $165.00. Daugherty.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys are poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away call by call.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up often during the night. The remedy and a book that tells all about it, both in English and German, sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in the paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

STRANGEST LYNCHING

Negro Was Compelled to Climb a Tree, Tie the Rope and Jump Off, Hanging Himself.

(New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

"Speaking of lynchings," said the man from Mississippi, "reminds me of the most peculiar instance ever 'pulled off' in the Black Belt. You must know that, infinitely the greater number of the impromptu hangings which take place from time to time in that state occur in the hills, where strong measures are needed to mark the difference between the lowest grade of whites and the common run of negroes. Occasionally, however, we do resort to a 'long rope' and an oak limb to punish infractions of the social code, and when we do, we sometimes adopt unique methods. Upon the occasion I now remember a field hand on one of the big plantations, got so mixed up with the contents of the plantation store that he burned the building down upon the murdered clerk to hide the evidences of crime. Bloodhounds took the trail but lost it in the nearest swamp. Posses scoured the country, but found no traces of the runaway. One day the owner of the plantation was riding through a deadening back of his place, a negro sprang across the road in front of him, glancing with a frightened expression in the direction of the white man. The white man, a dignified and gray-bearded ex-Confederate, recognized the criminal, and started his deer dog after him. Within 200 yards he ran the fugitive to bay. The wretch pleaded for his life, swore in one breath that he was innocent and in the next acknowledged the deed, and wept for mercy. The white man was inexorable. Taking a long rope from his saddle he forced the darkey to tie it about his thick black neck. The negro begged for time to pray. This was granted him, and the trembling fellow dropped in a heap upon the ground to pour out his soul in frenzied howls for help and pity. At last the white man kicked him from the ground, and ordered him to climb a tree. Quivering and flinching at every step the ashy-faced wretch worked his way up the trunk of a young oak. Reaching a limb 15 feet above the ground he was compelled to knot the rope about the limb, given one minute for prayer and then ordered to jump. The waiting darkey hesitated, steadied himself for a moment and leaped out into the air. The white man rode into the little county seat and told the sheriff he would find the criminal in a near-by wood. The sheriff sprang to his feet and shouted for the dogs.

"Never mind the dogs, Sheriff," said the plantation owner, "take a wagon," and he rode on to the post-office. The peculiar feature of the affair is that the lyncher had no weapon with him save a little riding switch."

GIRL

Tackled the Burglar in the Mansion of Rockefeller's Daughter and Man Was Arrested.

New York, Jan. 30.—A sensational attempt at a daylight robbery in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Palmalee Prentice, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, at No. 5 West Fifty-third street in the heart of the fashionable residence district bordering on Fifth avenue, in which there have been numerous burglaries recently, was frustrated late yesterday afternoon by the servants of the house, who managed by fierce fighting to hold one of the burglars prisoner until the arrival of the police. He described himself at the police station as Charles Becker, a plumber. His pockets were filled with valuable silverware, and he was held until today for further examination.

The burglars were discovered while at work looting the library by Catherine Green, one of the maid servants. She screamed wildly for help and at the same time grabbed one of the men by the coat, to which she clung until other servants came to her assistance, and after a fierce fight he was captured, the other breaking away and making his escape.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force's little daughter, Eleanor, who is ill with diphtheria is believed now to be out of danger. Mr. and Mrs. Force's baby died Thursday.

KUSTERS'

TO HAVE A SPLENDID NEW DINING ROOM.

Some Big Improvements and Alterations are Being Made in the Restaurant.

Kuster & Co., the popular North Side restaurateurs are making some decided improvements in their place of business that will be appreciated by the general public. The stairway in the front hall has been torn out and the rooms formerly occupied by the bar and dining room have been thrown into one. This will be occupied by the bar and lunch counter, which will extend the entire length of the room. The room formerly occupied by the lunch counter, will be fitted up as a splendid dining room, capable of accommodating several hundred people. Everything will be first class and up to date, and will be one of the finest places in the city. Mr. Marion Sutton, the contractor, is doing the work.

TRAGEDY

Kept Constantly Before Their Minds so Family Will Move—Miss Stothart III.

Word was brought to town today by a neighbor of the Stothart family, near Outville, where the outrageous assault was made on the women by Artz, who afterwards killed himself and Mr. Hunt, that one of the women is still in a very serious condition. She is suffering greatly from nervous prostration from shock. The family say that they will not remain in their present house as the recollections of the frightful tragedy that took place there is kept constantly in their minds by the sight of the surroundings, so that it is no longer endurable.

Indiana Oil Field.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 30.—Oil operations in the Indiana field fell off during January. There were 279 wells completed, with a daily production of 3,372 barrels, a decline of 137 wells and 1,758 barrels daily production from December. The net decline in New York was 54. The indications are that there will be more activity in the field as soon as the weather opens than ever before. Thousands of acres are being leased preparatory to spring work.

Day's Successor.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—President Roosevelt is authority for the statement that he has not yet decided upon the man who is to succeed Wm. R. Day as Judge of the United States Circuit court. He told this to a delegation of Kentuckians who called on him to ascertain whether there was any chance for a Kentucky man getting the place. The President indicated, moreover, that he might not reach a decision for several days, but that his inclination was to appoint an Ohio man.

From what the President told the Kentucky delegation the latter inferred that there was a difference of opinion on the part of the two Ohio Senators as to who should be given Judge Day's position. It is understood that Senator Hanna favors United States District Judge C. Thompson of Cincinnati, while Senator Foraker's first choice, it is thought, is John K. Richards of Ironton, O., the Solicitor-General of the United States.

Condensed News.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Judge Gray of the strike commission, today sharply rebuked the Reading company for having discharged James P. Clark, a miner, who it was alleged, lost his position because he went to Scranton and testified before the commission. Judge Gray said to Supt. Velth: "A wrong has been committed and we look to you to right it."

Vienna, Jan. 30.—Scenes of violence in the Reichstag for which the chamber has become notorious, occurred again today. A large number of sugar growers and refiners, from the provinces, forced their way into the chamber and clamored for legislation to protect their interests. So riotous did the proceedings become that the sitting had to be suspended. The invaders were ejected after free fights had taken place in the lobbies.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The Care of Shoes.

Shoe bills are one of the heaviest drains in a large family, and where persons are careless with their shoes the burden becomes almost insupportable. It is neither cleanly nor good economy to have but one pair at a time, as shoes need changing and airing quite as much as other articles of clothing. To leave them carelessly thrown about under beds or in presses is very untidy as well as hard on the shoes. Each bedroom should be provided with a bag or box, and when shoes are not in use they should be dusted and put away. Many of the polishes now on sale are very injurious to the leather and should never be used unless to freshen up old shoes that are badly worn. Ordinarily a little vaseline rubbed on with a flannel rag will take the place of polish and help to preserve the leather.

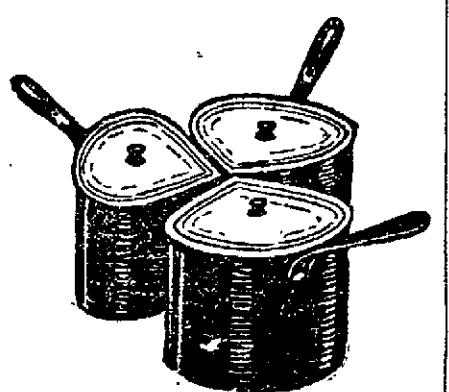

Vet boots or shoes are often hardened and shrunken by being dried near a fire. Instead of putting them under a stove lace or button the shoes, fill them with dried oats and leave in a place which is warm, but not hot. The oats will absorb a portion of the moisture and the air of the room the rest. The oats may be used again and again after drying.—Eleanor R. Parker.

How to Use Dry Bread.

Bread that is too dry for the table may be cut into slices, spread with butter and laid in an iron baking dish. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon and sugar and add half a pint of good milk and put on the stove. Put on cover to keep in steam and watch to prevent burning. When the bread has absorbed the milk it is done. To make milk toast cut slices of dry bread and toast brown. Heat half a pint of milk, into which put a small lump of butter. Sweet cream and a little salt may be used instead of butter if preferred. Dip each slice of toast into the heated milk and place in dish. If any milk is left pour over the toast. For bread pudding take three slices of dry bread, spread with butter and cut into small pieces. Add half a cup of raisins; make custard with two eggs, one pint of milk, sugar, salt and nutmeg to taste. Pour the custard over the bread in the pudding dish and bake one-half hour.—Mrs. Egbert N. Moore in Practical Farmer.

A Novel Utensil.

An interesting novelty of household use illustrated here is the new triple boiler. Three dishes can be cooked nicely on it, while the utensil does not take up more space on the stove or range than an ordinary saucepan which accommodates but one thing at a time.

THE TRIPLE BOILER.

ly on it, while the utensil does not take up more space on the stove or range than an ordinary saucepan which accommodates but one thing at a time.

Replacing Wooden Tubs.

I have had so much trouble with wooden tubs going to pieces in spite of all precaution, so that a few years back I replaced them with galvanized tubs, says Mrs. R. J. Vonable in Practical Farmer. After years of trial I could not be induced to go back to the old tubs. The zinc tubs are light, have good, strong handles, can be quickly washed and hung up out of the way, and I find them very durable, having used one for eight years without a leak. They can be purchased in any size you wish, and a large one serves as a bathtub. When through using it, two persons can by the handles carry it out and empty, when it will be ready for use again. "A poor substitute for a bathroom," you say. Well, I want a bathroom, but while I am waiting for it I will take my "tubbing." If you will try the zinc, you will dispense with old wooden tubs with burst hoops.

How to Boil Water.

To boil water would seem to be a very simple thing, and yet the late Charles Delmonico used to say that very few people knew how to do it. "The secret is," he said, "in putting good fresh water into a neat kettle, already quite warm, and setting the water to boiling quickly, and then taking it right off for use in tea, coffee or other drinks before it is spoiled. To let it steam and simmer and evaporate until the good water is in the atmosphere and the lime and iron and dregs only left in the kettle is what makes a great many people sick, and it is worse than no water at all." Water boiled like this and flavored with a few drops of lemon juice Mr. Delmonico often recommended to his customers and friends who complained of loss of appetite. It is worth trying.

Novel Lamp Shades.

A novelty in lamp shades is a long fringe (many strands) of small, thin, pear-shaped shells strung and mounted on a stand, which is fitted over the globe and which can be used on the chandelier as well as on lamps. A more elaborate shade is made of various sized abalone seashells polished until all the mother of pearl or opalescent tints are fully brought out.

To Broil Salt Mackerel.

Lay salt mackerel, skin side uppermost, in cold water over night. Dry with a cloth, cut off the head and tip of tail, broil, serve on a hot dish and season with butter and a few drops of lemon juice or vinegar. Salmon and other larger fish should be freshened twenty-four hours.

PASSING AWAY

By John Pierpont

AS it chime of a tiny bell,
That came so sweet to my dreaming ear,
Like the silvery tones of a fairy's shell,
That he winds, on the bench, so mellow and clear,
When the winds and the waves lie together asleep,
And the Moon and the Fairy are watching the deep,
She dispensing her silvery light,
And he his notes as silvery quite,
While the boatman listens and ships his oar,
To catch the music that comes from the shore?—
Hark! the notes on my ear that play
Are set to words, as they float, they say,
"Passing away! passing away!"

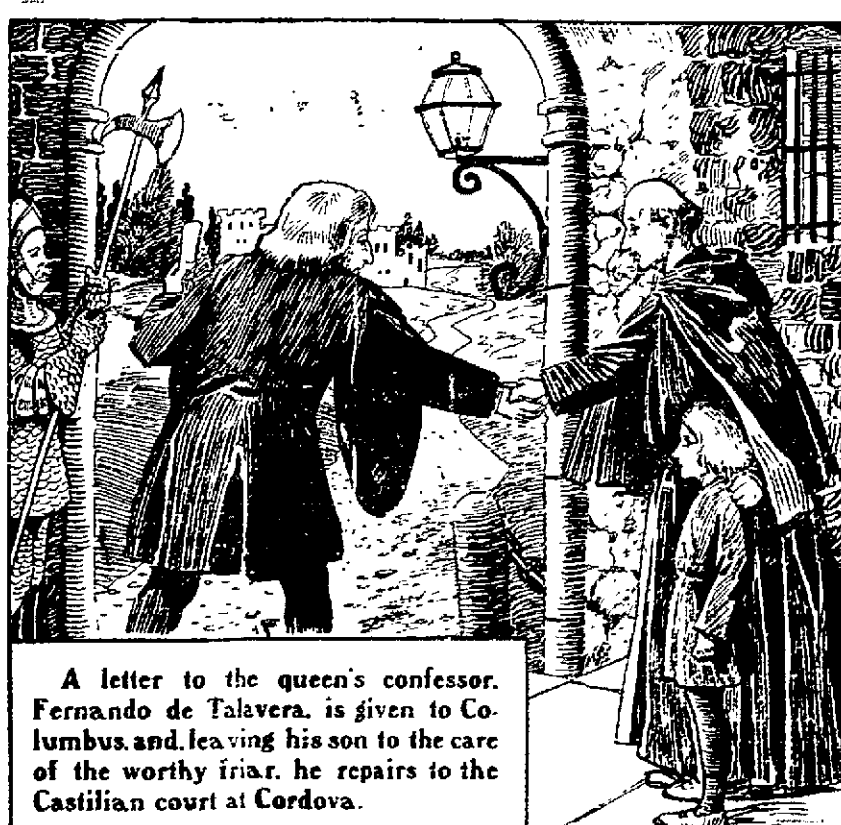

But not it was not a fairy shell,
Blown on the bench, so mellow and clear;
Nor was it the tongue of a silver bell,
Striking the hour, that filled my ear
As I lay in my dream, yet was it a chime
That told of the flow of the stream of time,
For a beautiful clock from the ceiling hung,
And a plump little girl for a pendulum swung
(As you've sometimes seen, in a little ring
That hangs in a cage, a canary bird swing)
And she held to her bosom a lulling bouquet,
And, as she enjoyed it, she seemed to say,
"Passing away! passing away!"

O, how bright were the wheels, that told
Of the lapse of time, as they moved round slow!
And the hands, as they swept o'er the dial of gold,
Seemed to point to the girl below,
And lo! she had changed—in a few short hours
Her bouquet had become a garland of flowers,
That she held in her outstretched hands, and hung
This way and that, as she, dancing, swung
In the fullness of grace and of womanly pride
That told she she soon was to be a bride—
Yet then, when expecting her happiest day,
In the same sweet voice I heard her say,
"Passing away! passing away!"

While I gazed at the fair one's cheek, a shade
Of thought or care stole softly over,
Like that by a cloud in a summer's day made,
Looking down on a field of blossoming clover,
The rose yet lay on her cheek, but its flush
Had something lost of its brilliant blush;
And the light in her eye, and the light on the wheels
That marched so calmly round above her,
Was a little dimmed—as when evening steals
Upon noon's hot face. Yet one couldn't but love her,
For she looked like a mother whose first babe lay
Rocked on her breast, as she swung all day—
And she seemed, in the same silver tone, to say,
"Passing away! passing away!"

While yet I looked, what a change there came!
Her eye was quenched, and her cheek was wan;
Stooping, and staffed was her withered frame,
Yet just as busily swung she on:
The garland beneath her had fallen to dust;
The wheels above her were eaten with rust;
The hands that o'er the dial swept,
Grew crooked and tarnished, but on they kept,
And still there came the silver tone
From the shriveled lips of the toothless crou,
(Let me never forget till my dying day
The tone, or the burden of her lay),—
"Passing away! passing away!"

DYING HYMN

By Alice Cary

ALICE CARY was the elder of the two famous Cary sisters, whose poetical works are still broadly read by the older generation. Alice was born in 1820 and died in 1895, being followed by her sister in a few months later. Most of Alice Cary's poems are religious in tone. The last two lines of the poem are from 1 Corinthians xv. 2. They are also the last two lines of "The Dying Christian to His Soul," by Alexander Pope.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Blind Squirrel.

"Here, Bunny, Bunny, Bunny!" It was the day of the first snowfall of this season, and the woman who called was one of the many women who find pleasure in going to Central park daily, carrying with them bags of nuts with which to feed the squirrels that find their homes there.

As she called there was a flash of gray, a whisk of a bushy tail, and there appeared before her a lively little rodent with his tiny hand raised dramatically to his breast. A dull, white eyeball told the story of sightlessness in one eye.

"You see," said the woman, turning to an interested onlooker, as the squirrel began feeding, "you see, when these little one-eyed pets are eating they always sit with the blind side toward their benefactor while devouring the dainties given them. Do you know why that is?"

"Well," she explained, throwing the squirrel another nut, "they are conscious that they are near a friend and need not watch her closely, so they keep a sharp lookout on the other side for stray dogs or other enemies."

True enough. Even as the woman spoke one of the many dogs that take their daily airing up and down the walk by the West drive escaped from its young mistress and, with its leader darning, made a dash for the squirrel. There was another flash of gray, a whisk of a bushy tail and a sharp squeak of fear as the very little creature with the one eye darted away to a safe lounge to blink and chatter and finish his peanut in safety.

"Are there many of these blind squirrels in Central park?" asked the onlooker of the woman, who seemed versed in squirrel lore.

"There are a good many, I'm afraid. You see, it is the work of mischievous boys who come here to the park with slingshots, diabolical little instruments of wood and rubber, and deliberately shoot out the eyes of these harmless creatures. However, the policemen keep a sharp lookout for such boys, and their misdeeds are becoming fewer, as they have learned that a park policeman swings his stick with much vigor."—New York Tribune.

Up From Humble Boyhood.

Difficulties and small beginnings needn't discourage a boy. For instance, one of the most respected ministers in New York city, a man whose opinion is asked on all the questions of the day, who dines with President Roosevelt and who is invited to California and Canada and various places to lecture to great crowds of people, had to leave school and work for $1.50 a week to help take care of his mother when he was only nine years old.

The first trousers he and his little brother had were made of a figured skirt of their mother's. The boys were too big for skirts, and yet she was too poor to buy cloth. The clergyman, who is white haired now, says he will never forget the day he put on those bright colored trousers. The design was such a large one that only by standing side by side so their four legs were in a row could they piece out a whole figure.—Exchange.

Ink and Fish Trick.

This is really a first class delusion. You first bring before the spectators a glass vase full of ink. You dip a ladle into it and pour out some of the ink upon a plate in order to convince the audience that the substance in the vase is really ink. You then throw a handkerchief over the vase and instantly withdraw it, when the vase is found to be filled with pure water, in which a couple of goldfish are swimming.

This apparent impossibility is performed as follows: To the interior of the vessel is fitted a black silk lining which adheres closely to the sides when pressed and which is drawn inside the handkerchief during the performance of the trick. The ladle has a hollow handle with an opening into the bowl. In the handle is a spongio or so of ink which runs into the bowl when it is held downward during the act of dipping it into the vase.

A New Railway Term.

A small boy was traveling with his father on an "accommodation" train. A stop was made at a little distance from a country station and the rear cars left standing on a curve while the engine and forward cars went on to do some switching.

The lad became restless and slipped away from his father and was soon hanging half out of a window in the rear of the coach. Presently his surprised little face reappeared, and he shouted to his father:

"Oh, papa, papa, the train has all come unbuttoned!"

Where Flint Comes From.

You never would think of it, would you? But I'm told that flint is nothing more or less than sponge turned to stone. Once the sponge grew on the bottom of the sea, as other sponges grow now, but that was ages and ages ago, and since then the sponge, turned flint, has laid covered by rocks and earth of many kinds piled thick above it. Seen with a microscope flint shows the make of sponge in its fibers.

A Better Name.

When three-year-old Lawrence came home from the zoo.

And described it to all his world's hear, His uncle, to tease him, named forward and back, and said:

"Can you say 'zoological' dear?"

Poor Lawrence was silent and squirmed on the chair.

While his little face turned red and grew dark.

Then, raising his eyes, he roared: "Zoological! Zoological! Zoological!"

JULIAN RALPH IN CHINA

Noted Journalist's Novel Meeting With a Celestial.

HIS ADVENTURE WITH A MINER.

Startling Experience Among the Molly Maguires and With a Reckless Welshman in a Coal Mine. Story of an Expensive Mistake in Paris.

When the late Julian Ralph, the well known journalist, went to China, he prepared himself very carefully in pigeon English, which he had been told he would find useful. On discovering a Chinaman in his bedroom in Shanghai he exclaimed: "Hello! What ting? What fashion man you belong? What side you come?" To which the Chinaman replied:

"This is Mr. Ralph, I presume? We have mutual friends who suggested my calling on you. Oh, that's all right," he went on. "I spent eight years at school in Norwich, Conn."

"Ah!" said Mr. Ralph, partially recovering his presence of mind. "Very well, very well."

To a correspondent of the New York Press Julian Ralph related this story of one of his experiences as a reporter: "I remember the day," he said, "that took me over the mountain behind Mauch Chunk and into the house of the family of a Molly Maguire who had been hung the day before. In company with a New York Herald man I stood beside the felon's coffin. The whisky, the tobacco, the crooning women and the low browed conspirators and murderers who had been the man's friends were in the room. They asked us if we were reporters, and I said we were.

"They told us in the most extravagant politeness they could command to 'git!' When they went out into the street, a reputable citizen called us in to his store and told us that our presence in the village had led to a determination on the part of the Molly Maguires to kill us after sunset. It was almost sunset then. The necessity for getting our reports into New York was what impelled us to walk along the lonely path over the mountain. Still, I am glad there was some other necessity.

"Reaching the largest coal mine in the United States, at Pottsville, after an explosion that had robbed many families of their heads, I tried to obtain permission to enter the mine. The owners said that it was certain death to go into it and I would not be permitted to do so. I paid a poor Welshman $5 to take me secretly down the shaft, and he and I spent an afternoon in the bowels of the earth. There would not have been anything very desperate about that but for the ignorance and recklessness of my Welshman—the same sort of ignorance and recklessness that had blown up that mine and has blown up a hundred others.

"He got to telling me about the 'brownies' that live in the mine. Queer little pygmies he said they were, not much bigger than your hand, clothed all in brown, wearing feathers in their hats and always appearing to a miner when something dreadful is about to happen to the mine or to the individual. He said that as he was at work in a blind shaft on the day of the explosion he heard a Lilliputian chattering and, looking up, saw a brownie four inches high standing in a crevice in a coal vein and holding up a warning finger. "My Welshman had a naked lamp in his hand, and suddenly he raised it and thrust it in a crack over my head, with the remark: 'The brownies do live in all such cracks as that.' When you know that I had been warned that if the flame of a lamp touched any of the crevices of the rocks wherein gas was still certain to be lurking another frightful explosion would occur, you can imagine my feelings as I seized that man's arm and pulled it down half a minute after the flame had penetrated that hiding place of the fatal fluid."

One day Julian Ralph was strolling along one of the boulevards in Paris in rather a lonely mood when two of the newspaper correspondents came up, says Vance Thompson in the Saturday Evening Post. By a sort of premeditated hazard they came at the luncheon hour. Mr. Ralph greeted them like brothers. "You don't know how much good it does me to get a chance to talk English," he said. "Why, do you know what I did today?" They didn't know. "I got shaved three times this morning at the barber shop in the Grand hotel because the barber could say, 'Yizsir, thankee, zirr!'"

"They were strolling down the Boulevard des Helons."

"Come and have a chop with me," said Mr. Ralph in his usual cheery way. "I noticed a little restaurant near here—quiet, modest, cheap looking little place—but by the looks of it I am pretty sure we can get things clean anyway. And of course we don't want much."

Mr. Ralph led the way into the "cheap little place, but clean." His friends raised their eyebrows, but they were too polite to say anything. They had their chops, with profusion of oysters, fish and other good things, and a collation of salad, cheese and fruit.

"Now, I suppose thousands of people walk past this place every day," said Mr. Ralph, "and never dream of coming in. They'd rather go to some fancy restaurant and waste money on their striae. I like things plain and simple and homely. Garçon, the bill, si vous plait!"

When the bill came, it was Mr. Ralph who raised his eyebrows. It was—but never mind. Mr. Ralph's clean little place was the Cafe Anglaise, the most expensive restaurant in Paris.

One hundred (job lot) cloaks worth up to $10, this sale at $1 to $1.98

During the past ten days it has been thoroughly demonstrated that there is no possible stop limit to the wheels of time when propelled by the main-spring of LOW PRICES during a clearing sale such as ours has been. Each day we expected to see the crowds in our sales lessened; each day found them more crowded than the succeeding one. Many of our patrons were forced to leave our store without being attended upon. Owing to this fact we have decided to extend this BIG FORCE SALE for the balance of this week, closing next Saturday evening at 9 o'clock. This will positively be the last opportunity to procure the bargains we are now offering. We are making a strong effort to avoid carrying over one single dollar's worth of winter goods, and nothing in this line will escape the vigilant eye of the Price Reducer.

Perhaps nowhere in the entire house are we inserting the knife as deep as in the Waist Department. TOO MANY WAISTS, and we are going to get rid of them at any price. All ne fall and winter styles, too, but they must go to make room for the new spring goods.

BETA'S SAFE—The sale of the Greenville Chapter of Beta Theta Pi, which has been locked ever since the burning of the Chapter House, was opened on Thursday by Frank Lear.

Seldom if ever in any one year of the history of the world have so many important events of universal interest taken place. America, England, Germany and France have each participated. The President of the United States welcomed and entertained H. R. H. Prince Henry of Prussia at the White House, Edward the VII. was crowned King of England and Emperor of India the German Emperor had his American-built yacht "Meteor" christened; France had the unveiling of the Rodin-Camille Statue, and at all functions attending these celebrations. Most of Champion's Champagne was used exclusively. This is indeed an unparalleled record which is most positive evidence of the superiority and popularity of the world's greatest sparkling wine.

Thomas went to visit them and a month after he arrived his uncle, who was 60 years old, killed himself. Twenty-one days afterwards Thomas married the beautiful widow, who was then but twenty years old.
